

BOSTON AMERICAN GIRL TELLS HOW IT FEELS TO DIVE IN AIR

Marjorie Baker and Lieut. R. C. Moffat about to start fight at Framingham. This is Leap Year, so of course it was the girl who asked: "Will you fly with me?" And the lieutenant, without a trace of bashfulness, answered "Yes."

DESCRIBES HER SENSATIONS ON LOOPING LOOP

How does it feel to make a nose dive? How does it feel to loop the loop in an airplane? If you have never had the sensation read the following story by a girl who has just experienced it. Miss Baker is a member of the Boston American staff. She made the trip through the courtesy of the officials who are in charge of the Massachusetts campaign for recruits for the United States Army air service. She started from Framingham and went up 7,500 feet. But read her own story.

By MARJORIE BAKER.

This morning I looked down on the earth—from a haughty altitude of 7,500 feet.

And later—Well, later I felt sort of weak in the knees. Never again will I turn up my nose at the universe. The "nose dive" cured that! It happened this way:

"I heard tell" that Uncle Sam has 25,000 airplanes, and only 3,000 aviators. That's one-fourth of a man to a plane. You can take my word for it, the recruits at least are men, and him all right. No they have started a campaign to recruit men in mid-air. I was always sure when I heard of army records, women's place is in the clouds.

Registration Closes in Towns Tonight

At 10 o'clock tonight the registration of voters for the National election in the towns of Massachusetts will close. Registration in the cities closed on October 13.

That remained of earth was a little bit, which one could see by looking directly beneath the machine. At an altitude of 7,500 feet, nothing could be seen save taken and rivers. As the nose went down, they looked like golden clouds in a sky of blue. The air was warm, and cool. "You're looking down at the earth," said the pilot. "I don't see how any man with red blood could stand it," said the pilot. "I don't see how any man with red blood could stand it," said the pilot. CHILDREN SAID FATHER BLEAZED

Three Families Forced to Flee Fire in Atlantic; Father Rescues Baby

Three families were driven from their homes in the frame apartment house at No. 31 Hilling street, Atlantic city today. One of the children, a five-month-old child, had a narrow escape from burning to death, for at the moment his father was rescuing the child in which the baby slept was a blazing mass.

GALLIVAN RAPS COALITION

South Boston Congressman Opens Campaign With Ra-lies in His Home Section

Congressman James A. Gallivan open his fight for re-election right with "the home folks" last night. The South Boston gathering packed the Municipal Building and hundreds were turned away. The Congressman made it clear that he believes foreign propagandists are responsible for the fight being made against him.

His attack was delivered chiefly against Republican Atwood and Independent O'Brien, but he managed to get into the charges he hurled a few remarks against the Loyal Coalition and its activities in the fight. He charged O'Brien with being, "always at the beck and call of the public service corporations."

"Atwood is the only candidate for Congress in Massachusetts," said Congreteman Gallivan, "who favors the notorious Smith-Towner bill now before Congress. O'Brien is a part and parcel of the Atwood outfit."

Touching on the Irish situation he made it clear that there was yet more work to be done in Congress. Regarding the soldiers, American Legion and his efforts for them, he stated that he claimed no credit, that he merely did what he saw fit.

Tonight he speaks at Savin Hill and Dorchester, expenses paid. Glavin closed.

Dorchester avenue, Dorchester College, Dorchester avenue and Adams street and Michigan avenue. They will be outdoor rallies.

WELCOME TO ESTILL,
"SALLIES" NEW HEAD
A public welcome meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Wilbur Theatre for Commissioner Thomas H. Hill, of the New York State Prison, the Salvation Army. Lieutenant-Governor Channing H. Cox will preside. In addition to the meeting in the afternoon, there will be two sessions at the People's Palace, Washington and Brookline streets, on 11 a. m. and the other at 7.30 p. m. Commissioners Hill and Cox will attend the sessions and music will be furnished by the massed Salvation Army bands.

How About Your Weight?

No insurance company will insure those who are underweight.

Many thin people find that they gain weight steadily while taking Father John's Medicine.

The pure food tonic elements, which are contained in this old-fashioned prescription strengthen and build up those who are thin, weak and run down. It is real food and in a form which even the weakest system can easily take up.

BRITISH PROPAGANDA IS INSIDIOUS

McSweeney Shows Startling Propaganda Carried on by London Times

By EDWARD F. MCSWEENEY
British propaganda in the United States reaches out to embrace clean sport for its purposes as shown in the London Times.
It is not only in the so-called "American issue" that the details of an attempted "better understanding are outlined." A casual examination of almost any daily issue of the Times will reveal much about this line. We are told that the "fortuitous" efforts to well-wishers of both Britain and the U. S. opportunity to clear away many of the misleading statements with regard to the causes of the war in America that they now seem to be clothed in a garb of circumstantial fact. "That full use can be made of the splendid educational opportunity afforded by the 'fortuitous' cannot be doubted."

GOLFING PROPAGANDA.
There is a suggestion for an Anglo-American Golfing Society, as a link of friendship, with headquarters in each country, where the golfers of both nations can meet as members of a single community. "Play golf in complete friendship and understanding." To what purpose? "We are told that 'if you can trust a man on the links you can trust him in the council chambers.'"

"Here then, is an opportunity of doing—asking to be asked, it requires thought and good organization—it means expense and time. There certainly are difficulties, but are not difficulties meant to be overcome?"
Another correspondent refers to the American hospital he started in London this year and the advance in medical science, but "even of greater value will be its influence as a link bringing together the two nations in the nobility of aims—the relief of suffering and the welfare of humanity."

Still another communication refers to several societies representative of the best thought of the United States striving to right the wrong done to England by unfair treatment in American school history text books. Honorable mention is made of Alchew's book, "The American Revolution in Our Text Books," and his findings quoted. "It is to be wondered at," says the correspondent, "if the great majority of America's youth should attain majority with prejudiced and distorted notions of the time and conditions of Great Britain?"

It thus appears that we have Great Britain earnestly seeking this better understanding through our professors, our text books, our journalists, our golfers, our doctors and "various societies." The Anglo-American union cannot be effected through the crude methods which served to lead to the British of old Ireland. No, indeed. There must be a gradual invasion and absorption of our intellectual life and cultivation of various social laws which sociologists are pointing out to us.

CELEBRITY COMMENT.
"That English propaganda has had a tremendous impulse in recent years is known to us all, but the statement of Sir A. Conan Doyle in the August 6th issue of the Times makes an interesting acknowledgment: 'In the present world conflict, our (the British) propaganda were the early deficit, until towards the close they came into the masterful hands of Lord Northcliffe, who brought them to a high point of efficiency, which had a direct effect upon the result.'"

To Be Continued Monday.

The Maori Religion

THE Maori religion is nature-worship combined with veneration of ancestors. A peculiar and interesting detail of their religion is the belief that the soul dwells in each human being's left eye. The Maoris were cannibals in days gone by.

How Those Who Commit Unrighteous Acts Must Deeply Pay the Price

By Cosmo Hamilton

Author of "Scandal," "Who Cares?"

CHAPTER XIII.

ALMOST always you may tell a woman's character by her eyes. In this case you can tell her by her eyes and her nose. As to her nose, it was a straight nose, as to her eyes, they were blue eyes, as blue as the sky, and as bright as the stars. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

No one lucky enough to see Frankie Mundy home could make any mistake. She was one superb pearl on her right hand and on her left not one of the ultra-modern camouflages which women of flippant minds are affecting, but an old-fashioned, unmistakable wedding ring.

With a deep and sympathetic knowledge of common sense, Frankie chose Saturday night for her dinner parties. This enabled the men of Quaker Hill not only to do justice to the best of wines but to continue to do justice to them until the wee small hours without thought of that cursed morning train as morning trains are morning trains.

The party was given to meet Mary Miller, a faded young creature, and she was a complete surprise brought everybody to the little house. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age. She was a woman of a certain type, a woman of a certain class, a woman of a certain age.

Here's a Thumb-Nail Sketch of Our Author

Don't you always wonder while reading a book what kind of a man the author is? Cosmo Hamilton, author of this story, is half-Irish, half-English, married an American girl, has two babies and lives in New York. He's been in Boston this week supervising his play, "Scandal," running at a Boston theatre. You may have looked right at him.

He likes Boston, says it is a charming city, has atmosphere, distinction. As an ex-army man Mr. Hamilton has this to say about Ireland: "I think the moment has come for England to give Ireland her freedom, 'lock, stock and barrel'."

Now read his story of how a married woman's sense of adventure nearly wrecked her life and the lives of those nearest and dearest to her.

He gave a short laugh and for the first time since his early school days actually blushed. "Forgive this little outburst," he added, "but I thought that she would understand that he was also apologizing for an indirect and unmanly criticism of her."

But Margaret remained as still and as white as a sheet. "You know too," she said, "where I sit. I know too."

SHORTEST YANK WANTS JOB

American Helping George W. Knowles Find Work; Willing to Do Anything

Through the efforts of the American, many employment agencies in this city are searching today for a position for George W. Knowles, No. 122 Washington street, who is the shortest soldier in the whole American army during the World War, and who put up the biggest fight to get into the service of any man in the country.

Mr. Knowles had to fight to get into the army, not because he was physically unfit for service, or because he could not stand a rifle, but because he was only 45-1/2 inches in height with his shoes on, and 43-1/2 inches below the height that men are accepted in the army.

He was so short that he had to be carried on his chest to get into the service that Congressmen Champ Clark and several other Congressmen came to his assistance. They intervened for him with the War Department and after a great deal of difficulty finally permitted the secretary of war to appoint him as a runner in the army.

But even this did not satisfy Mr. Knowles. His country was at war and he wanted to get overseas to get the thing done. He made several applications to be sent across with a fighting organization but each time was refused. Finally, after interviewing about every office holder in the capital in this case, he was granted permission to join an overseas outfit. He was then given the opportunity to go, however, the armistice was signed.

HASNT SOMEBODY A JOB?

Now he is out of the service and out of a job. He is a janitor by trade, but he is willing to take anything that will give him an opportunity to make a livelihood.

Isn't there somebody who has a job to offer him?

BRILLIANT BILL AT SYMPHONY

Monteux Gives Artistic Conception of 'Sibelius' Works; Raptz Piebeard

By FRED J. McISAAC

Sibelius, Scriabin and Raptz were the composers featured by the Boston Symphony orchestra yesterday. Sibelius, the Finnish composer, was represented by his first symphony, the last of his four, and in my opinion his greatest. There is no question about the power, breadth and grandeur of this symphony and it was performed with the very special gifts which Monteux came to bring to this orchestra.

Raptz is the director of the Conservatory of Strasbourg, having been appointed to that post since France recovered the lost provinces. He is a most effective musician, and his interpretation of Raptz's works was a most effective one.

Scriabin is the director of the Conservatory of Strasbourg, having been appointed to that post since France recovered the lost provinces. He is a most effective musician, and his interpretation of Scriabin's works was a most effective one.

TERRIFIC GALE OFF BANKS, SHIP REPORTS

Hatfield, Oct. 23.—With her rudder badly twisted, rudder almost gone and considerable damage on her aft deck, the fishing schooner Avalon, Captain Ernest Engstrom, of Gloucester, Mass., has arrived here from St. Pierre, Azores, reporting a terrific gale last Thursday and Friday of last week.

The blow started Wednesday from the north, gradually working to the southeast, and finally moderating Saturday. One of the men on the ship was killed by the force of the wind and the sea was the worst he has ever seen in a life of 30 years on the banks.

ELINOR GLYN SEEKS NEW AMERICAN HERO

New York, Oct. 23.—Elinor Glyn arrived in New York today on the Mauretania seeking a new hero for a book. She declared that the American "must be as chivalrous as the English" and as strong as the English and as brilliant as Napoleon.

Glyn, who is married with European people, said, "I am tired of the English. I want to write about the Americans. I want to write about the Americans. I want to write about the Americans."

Threat of War Over Erin Won't Scare America

“LORD CHURCHILL'S threat of Britain warring on America over the Irish problem will not scare this country,” writes Dr. John F. O'Brien, chairman of the executive of the Commemorative Association, in a letter to the Gloucester and Halifax. Stout sea-going craft, manned by stout-hearted sea-going men, will provide a contest far more thrilling than the recent America's cup

He deplores the fact that "in this year 1920, in which knowledge and democracy are triumphing, it is possible for men to charge the Jew with the guilt of the world." He asserts it is the Jews who are in peril and not the world, and that the Jews are the "Habsburgs and the Czars of the Jewry."

It is a hospital which was started in a South End basement, with the furnace man as an interne, helping in the administration of ether. The founder had a dream, and after many years it has come true. For the past six months the hospital he started saved the sufferings of 44,290 little ones.

Discourses of a Scientist

By Edgar Lucien Larkin
Director of Mt. Lowe Observatory

The earth has plenty of oxygen available in its aerial envelope, but not enough of carbon anywhere to unite with it.

chemically to develop the phase of energy named heat. The United States has carbon sufficient in the liquid form to last at present rate

At present the United States is using 400,000,000 barrels of oil annually. We may as well look the facts in the face now as to do so eighteen years later. The United States has a vast amount of coal, but its consumption must rapidly increase when oil has vanished. But the deeper the mine the more the cost of getting out coal. The world's supply of carbon is limited. And therefore the supply of electricity generated in machines actuated by heat derived from combustion of carbon, with from combustion of carbon and oxygen is limited. Burn wood when coal is gone is a possibility by planting vast acreage to the growing of trees. This produces a second effect of increasing the burning of carbon under boilers using fuel once. And the water can be used for another purpose just as important; namely, irriga-ness would be slow and expensive. So humans must in due time secure power from other sources than black carbon.

"White coal" is the expressive and impressive term given at the recent session of the National Electric Light Association to snow. There is always enough melting snow on mountains to turn by its descent to the sea every wheel on earth. And this by transmutation of its force of descent into that of power. Let the nation awaken to this fact. At present only 6,000,000 horsepower of running water is developed, and little is stored. Possibilities beyond comprehension time—electricity. Make gravitation do the work is the watchword. It must be brought about sometime. Everybody may rest assured that the world will bring it about.

They are making ready now. "Flowing on forever" has been beautifully said of running water, "slugging its way to the sea."

1. The first part of the document is a letter from the President of the United States to the Congress, dated January 1, 1861. It is a formal address, and it is the first of its kind since the signing of the Constitution. The President, James Buchanan, is addressing the Congress, and he is doing so in a very formal and dignified manner. He is discussing the state of the Union, and he is discussing the issues that are facing the country at that time. He is also discussing the role of the President, and he is discussing the responsibilities of the Congress. The letter is a very important document, and it is a very interesting one to read. It gives us a glimpse into the mind of the President, and it gives us a glimpse into the state of the country at that time. It is a document that is worth reading, and it is a document that is worth studying.
